Spencer Cavanaugh

What makes me who I am

I believe my psychic essence to lie in a process of expressing passion - a process that has been perpetually folded over and subjected to further refinement by means of ~~self~~ critical self reflection. this, perhaps, can shed light on how I came to am to the dialectical method, to something that, while often treated as merely the means to that raw promise of philosophy, I seem to have found value in as an end itself.